

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

THIS compilation is founded on a curious and valuable record, entitled, "The Pedigree of the worthy Captaine and Justiciar, Sir William Cole, of Eneskillen, Knight; made and set forthe, with much care and fidelitie; warranted by Records, Evidences, and other good proofes, examined, approved, and well allowed of by me Sir William Segar, Knt., alias Garter. And in assured testimony to all persons whoe shall see the same, that it doth agree in all the descents, coats, and Ensignes, with the Registers Bookes and Records of my Office, and the Office of Arms and Honor, kept at London; I, the said Sir William Segar, alias Garter, Principall King of Armes, have hereunto subscribed my name and affixed the Seale of myne Office, this 30th day of Julye, An^o Domini 1630, Annoque Sexti Domini nostri Caroli, magnæ Britanniæ, Franciæ, et Hiberniæ Regis, Fidei defensor, etc."

Wm. Willoughby, the 1st Visct. Enniskillen, reduced it into a narrative form for the Rev. Mervyn Archball's edition of John Lodge's Irish Peerage (8^o London, 1789); and his lordship's system and phraseology are here freely made use of, as they were also, though without acknowledgment, in Playfair's British Family Antiquity (fo. Lond. 1810).

Since then, however, it has been, so far as relates to the noble line of Enniskillen, extended down to the present time, and attested under the seals of their office by Sir Wm. Betham, and Sir J. Bernard Burke, Ulster Kings at Arms. These additions together with some particulars derived from the publications of the Record Commissioners, &c., are introduced; and the continuation of the other branches has been made from the Heralds' Visitations, Wills, Parish Registers, Monumental Inscriptions and other ancient evidences. They have been carefully collated, and, where possible, tested with the originals, so that it is hoped that no inaccuracies may occur, or such only as are inseparable from a labour of this character.

. The writer will be glad to receive any additions or corrections.

INTRODUCTION.

Much ingenious speculation has been expended on the origin and signification of the name of Cole. In A New System, or an Analysis of Ancient Mythology, by Jacob Bryant of Cypenham, is an elaborate dissertation thereon, consisting of more than three quarto pages, wherein he shows it to be the same as COU-EL, or Co-EL, Heavenly, or the House or Region of the Deity; for the place of worship was, in many instances, taken for the person to whom the worship was directed. He says that Coilus, from Coel, the old Latin form of Coelus, meant "a sacred or heavenly person, in other words, a priest of Coelus."

The learned Camden says that Cole is formed from the last syllables of Nicholas; and M. A. Lower, in his *Essay on Nomenclature copies this statement.

It is, however, more likely to be a contraction of Agricola, a tiller of the soil, as Cola occurs in the Domesday Survey† as the holder of much land in the counties of Hants, Devon, Wilts, etc., in the reign of King Edward the Confessor; but this derivation has evidently been passed over as too simple to be adopted by the above eminent writers.

Sir Henry Ellis' Introduction to Domesday, gives these references and notes, "Cola, venator, Hants, p. 50, 50b. Note—"Cola venator ten. dimidium hidæ de Vluiet patre suo in Langelie. GENEALOGY

OF THE

FAMILY OF COLE.

Cole was a noble mon, and gret power hadde on honde,
Erle he was of Colchestre here in this londe,
And Colchestre after ys name y clepud ys ich understoode.

Robert of Gloucester's Chronicle, p. 82, as quoted in Wright's History of Essex, Vol. 1. p. 32.

It hath been asserted that this family derives its origin from Coel, the founder of Colchester, one of the Kings of Britain. Yet without claiming as its patriarch either this renowned descendant of Caractacus, or the Justice Cole, who lived in the reign of King Alfred, or the valiant General Cola, who, in command of the united forces of Devon, Somerset, and Dorset, defeated at Pinhoe,* in 1001, Sweyne, the savage Chieftain of the Danes, its high antiquity and rank amongst the magnates of the land in Saxon times are attested by Domesday Book, and by "This deed of King William's, the Conqueror, [which] was written in the Saxon Tongue, 5° W. C. 1070, and was put into English 1587, 15° Maij, A° 27 Reg. Elizabethæ, and remains [1630] in the Bishop of Winchester's custody."

"William, King, greetes Walkesein, Bishop, and Hugon de Port, and Edward Knighte, Steward, and Algesime and Symon and Allfus, Porveieur, and COLE and Arderne and all the Barons in Hampshire and Wiltshire friendly-and Know ye that I give unto St. Peter and Walcholyne Bishop† with all the convent to be as free as

* Oliver's Ecclesiastical Antiquities of Devon and Cornwall, Vol. III., p. 123.

† There appears to be an omission here.

Bishop Alsyme was in the days of King Edward, and to hold and enjoy all the privileges greate and small and I give commaundment that noe man for me or any other withstand or deny them the same, or disquiet that which I doe graunt in any wise unto St. Peter or Walcholyne Bishop or any of his successors."

"This is in the Inspeximus of the Charters of confirmacions made to Richard Fox and Peter Courtney, Bishops of Winchester, as they are inrolled in the Chauncery, 30 jan. 2° H. 8, and 15 Nov. 4° H. 8."

The precise period of the settlement of this baron on the borders of the counties of Devon and Cornwall is not ascertained, but it was, doubtless, soon after the above date, as he accompanied the bold Martin de Tours (or Turribus) from hence, on his marauding expedition into Cemaes, South Wales, and was ancestor of the families of Cole, Young, and Mathias.*

William Cole and Ysabella† his wife are named in Assize Roll of the County of Cornwall, in the third year of King John (anno domini 1201). In the fourteenth year of King John (1212) Roger Cole‡ granted to Edith, late wife of Ralph Burdeville, a capital messuage and lands in Hoke——, in the county of Devon, to be held of him for the term of her life, with remainder to himself and his heirs; and in 1219 mention is made of Roger Cole in a Fine roll relating to a third part of one knight's fee in Hardwinesleigh,§ in the same county.

"Richard Cole, of the County of Devon," says Segar, "lived in the tyme of Henry III., as appears by the Charter (to the Monastery of Bromere) of Amice Redvers, Countess of Devon." But it is not known what relationship he, or the above-named persons, bore to

He was father of
- 3 ROGER (of whom immediately), and of the above-named William, who probably perished in this expedition, as there is no further trace of him; and perhaps his early death may account for the omission of his name in the family pedigree drawn up, in July 1630, by Sir William Segar, Garter, King-at-Arms.
- 3 ROGER was heir to his father Roger, and lived in the reign of Edward II.; his son and heir was

§ He was perhaps the "William Cole of Tamar, knt., temp. Edward I.," of whom mention is made at p. 51, of Sir William de la Pole's History of Devon. License to "crenellate" Tamar was granted in 9th Edward III. No remains of this castle now exist, nor can its site with certainty be determined. It is believed, however, that a manor in Werrington, known in modern times as Poolapit-Tamar was the one indicated; and this assumption is confirmed by the fact of there being in the same parish farms called "Coleshill," and "Great and Little Tamerton."

In the 9th of Edward III (1335) he had free warren in Tamer, Lydeston, Hokesbere, and Hutenesleigh in the county of Devon, and in Rispernatt;* and it appears by a Fine of 15 Edward III. (1341) that he was possessed of the manors of Respnel in the county of Cornwall, Launceston, and Stokley, and of the manor of Uptamer, Nytheway, and Hutenesleigh, the third part of the manor of Winston, and divers other lands in the county of Devon. He left a son and heir, (1380) was "knighted (before the castle of Amdres) in Fraunce, by the Erl of Buckingham Thomas of Woodstock, Lord Deputy there for the King,"† and who married Anne, daughter and heiress to Sir Nicholas Bodrigan,‡ knt., by whom he had issue, † Landsdowne MS. 783, p. 116, and Froissart's Chronicles, Vol. V, chap. 34 of Johnes' ed. 8vo, 1806.

‡ The manor of Bodrigan (anciently written Bodrigan), in Gorrans, says Carew, gave a name and seat to a very ancient family. In the time of K. Henry III. John de Bodrigan occurs as witness to a deed, and in the same reign Henry de B. had a grant of a market and fair at Pendrum. Of the latter person notice is also made in a deed of the Trevelyan family of the 2 K. Ed. I.

Another Henry de B. (probably his son), married Sibylla, sister and heir to Walter de Maundeville, of whose lands he had livery 17 Ed. I. : in 2 Ed. II. he was found heir to his uncle, William de B. (who had died the year before), and had livery of the inheritance which thus devolved on him; but it appears that he died the same year, for the king's escheator had command to take possession of all his lands, among which was the manor of Bodrigan, as also those of his late uncle, and of the lands of the said Sibylla, which were in co. Beds. He had been a knight of the shire in 35 Ed. I. ; and in 3 Ed. II. (1310) was summoned to parliament as a Baron; but as he died about this time, and never sat in that capacity, it is thought that his death and the writ may have been of a contemporaneous date, or that it was issued in ignorance of his decease. He was found to be seised of the manor of Iregerien, &c., in Cornwall, and of all the tenements, rents, and services, of the same.

6 WILLIAM COLE (called Sir William Cole of Tamar, knt., by De la Pole, and also in a Herald's Visitation of Devon), who married Margaret, daughter of Sir Henry Beaupell, knt., and by her was the father of

His son Sir Otto de B. was in 17 and 19 Ed. II. a knight of the shire; and 20 Ed. I. had custody of the island of Lundy with its appendages committed to his charge. In 1324 he went by the king's license on a pilgrimage to the Church of St. James in Spain. He married Margaret, daughter of Sir William Champernon, knt., and died possessed of B., and of a considerable estate in Cornwall in 6 Ed. III.; at which date his son and heir Sir Henry de B. was likewise deceased. This last named knight married Isabell, daughter of William Wallesborow of Whalesborough, and had three sons, viz., Sir William, his heir (who married Julian, daughter of Sir John Stoner of Stoner, co. Oxon, knt., and had a daughter and heiress, Philippa, who married Sir Richard Sergeaulx, knt., sheriff of Cornwall in 1389); Sir Otto or Otho, sheriff of Cornwall in 3 Rd. II., knt. of the shire 43 Ed. III., and 7 Rd. II. (who was father of William, knt. of the shire 3, 4, 5, 8 and 9 of Henry V., who died s. p., and of Otho, who became heir to his brother); Nicholas, the 3rd son, died in 1362, and had 2 sons, viz. Otho and Nicholas. Otho married Jane, daughter of William Trelausard, and by her had Joane, his heir, who married four husbands:— 1st, Sir John Trevaignon, knt., who died s. p.; 2ndly, Ralph Trenowith (by whom before marriage she had a son William, who bore the name of Bodrugan, and the arms of his mother ("within a bordure"); he possessed himself of all her inheritance, and had issue Sir William B., knt., who died 24 Dec. 20 Henry VI., whose son and heir, Sir Henry B., was attainted of treason 1 Henry VII.); 3rdly, Sir John Trevarthian, knt., by whom she had issue, Otho Trevarthian, his son and heir, who died s. p., and Vidona (heir to her brother) married to — Reskymmer, and had Ralph R.; 4thly, Robert Hull, who survived her.

Nicholas, the 2nd son of Nicholas, the 3rd son of Sir Henry B., knt., married and left a daughter and heir, who became the wife of Sir John Cole of Nythway. Segar remarks that "This match of Sir John Cole, knt., with the daughter and heiress of Nicholas Bodrugan and the descents following are proved by divers auncient Rolls, Bookes, and Pedigrees, remaining in the Office of Arms, London, 1630."

The quarterings brought to Cole by this match were, according to Segar, 1 BODRUGAN, Arg. 3 bends Gu.; 2 Scott, Arg. an eagle displayed Sa., armed Gu.; 3 Stapleton, Arg. a lion rampant Sa., armed Gu.; 4 Trevaner, Arg. a cross flory Sa.; but it appears the Bodrugans were also entitled to quarter the coat of Maundeville, viz., Quarterly Or and Gu.

Sir Henry Trenowith alias Bodrugan (aboved named) married Jane (or Margaret) Herbert, daughter of the 1st Earl of Pembroke, and was made a Knight of the Bath by king Edw. IV. He fought at Bosworth on the side of Rd. III. He married Agnes, daughter of Sir — Fitzwarine, knt., and had issue four sons, viz:—

I. Sir Adam Cole, knt., his heir, who succeeded at Uptamer and Nythway, and marrying Elizabeth,† daughter of Sir Richard Weston, knt., had a son John, the father of John, who left issue only two daughters, his co-heirs, viz.:—Elizabeth, married to Sir John Huddy, of Stowell, co. grantees of his confiscated estates (said to have been of the annual value of ten thousand pounds), may be found in Carew's and Gilbert's Surveys of Cornwall. Borlase in describing the ruins of Bodrugan castle, says, "there was nothing in Cornwall equal to it for magnificence."

* Harl. M.S., no. 782, and M.S. in Coll. of Arms, published by Sir Nicholas Harris Nicolas, K.H., under the title of The Battle of Agincourt, 2nd ed. Lond, 1832.

† There is a discrepancy amongst the authorities as to the name of the wife of Sir Adam Cole; for Sir Wm. De la Pole, at p. 282 of his History of Devonshire, gives it as Margaret (the daughter of Sir Henry de la Pomeroy, knt.), whilst the Visitations of Devon, in 1562-4-5, and 1620 (Harl. MSS. 1538-889-1080-1091-1399-3288-4031-5185), and Segar, in the pedigree that he compiled for Sir Wm. Cole, assert it to be Elizabeth, the daughter of Sir Richard Weston, knt., of Wilts.

It is quite possible that they all may be correct, and that he may have taken to wife both Elizabeth and Margaret, as stated in the text. This supposition is supported by the abstract of a deed, which recites that "Sir Adam Cole and Margaret, his wife, granted," &c., &c.

Whoever she may have been, it is obvious that Segar could never have supposed that the date attached to that deed, 3 Richard II. (1380), could be any where near the period when Sir Adam existed. For it is not possible that he could have been living about that time, and yet be the 7th in descent from Wm. Cole of Huteneleigh, who lived in 1243, only 145 years previously; or that he could be the uncle of Sir Simon Cole of Slade, who died circa 12 Henry VII. (1497), more than 117 years afterwards. These dates are reliable, and the relationships are attested by Segar himself. It is clear therefore that he has unwittingly committed an anachronism with regard to this knight. This was owing, perhaps, to there having been an Adam Cole, who lived about 1380, and who, it appears, from Rymer's Fœdera, vol. III., part 2,

Pomeroy, knt., and their sole daughter,* married John Holbeame of Holbeame, in co. Devon, esq., and had issue William Holbeame†, Sir William de la Pole adds, "from Margaret, wife of Adam Cole, is descended Baynham of Gloucestershire."

8 II. JOHN COLE, of whom hereafter (see p. 12).

8 III. WILLIAM COLE,‡ who married and had two sons, WILLIAM 9 (of whom hereafter), and Stephen, his heir, who married

p. 1078, was charged by King Edward III., by letter, dated 14 May, in the 51st year of that monarch's reign (1377), to prevent the landing of the French on the coast of Devon. At p. 1002 of vol. III. of the Fœdera, it is stated that this (?) Adam, in 48 Edward III., A.D. 1377, was master of the ship "Le Christophre" of Southampton. These entries sufficiently prove that he could not be the same person as the Sir Adam Cole of Uptamer.

The name seems to have been a favourite one, for in 1305 and 1307, there was an Adam Cole, who was the Burgess returned to Parliament for Ilchester, in Somersetshire, (Palgrave's Writs of Summons, &c.). Clutterbuck's Hertfordshire, also makes mention of an Adam Cole who, in 1277, held a moiety of 1 virgate of land in Walkened, Herts; the other moiety being held by Robert Cole.

Since the above was written, I have met with this extract at p. 417 Harl. MS. 34 (Tenentes Regis in Capite): Henrici VI., Termino Michaelis ao. VII. Devon' Thom. de Pomeray, chevalier, et Johanna, uxor ejus, filia Johannis unius, et Johannes Cole, armiger, filius Margaretæ alterius sororum Johannis Pomeray, consanguineorum et hæredum ejusdem Johannis Pomeray, tenent duas partes manerii de Stokley-Pomeray ut parcella manerii de Bury Pomeray per servitium VII^æ. partis unius feodi militis, et medietatem duarum partium maneriorum de Harberton et Brixham, in comitatû prædicto per servitium 20^æ partis, 477^æ partis Baronis de Harberton; et ibidem annotatur, quod Joh: de la Pomeray tenuit dictam med: maneriorum de Harberton et Brixham per servit: XVI^æ partis Baronis et manerium de Tregony in com. Cornubiæ de Rege ut de castro suo de Launceston per servit. XIII. feodi militis Moreton."

In the Coll. Top. et Genealog., vol. 7, p. 55, it is stated that this John Cole, esq., died s.p. shortly after the division of the Pomeroy estates between himself and Joan, wife of Sir Thomas Pomeroy, and before the 2 Henry VI.

The de la Pomerays, or Pomeroyes, were summoned to Parliament as Barons for nearly three centuries. Henry de Pomeroy, the 6th Lord, married Joane, daughter of Roger, 3rd Lord, and sister and co-heiress to Roger, 7th Lord Valletort, "the great Barons of the West."

He was an active Justice of the Peace for the county of Oxford. The Rev. John Jordan, in his History of Enstone,† writes:—"Three of Mr. Cole's children, George Grace, and George, died in their infancy, and on the diamond stones covering their graves in the church are Latin inscriptions with mottoes to each, expressive at once of the piety of the parents, and the circumstances of the children. In December, 1702, at the age of four, died Grace, the motto on her stone being 'Talium est Regnum Cœlorum.' In May, 1703, in five months after the former, died George, aged seven, whose motto is 'Veni, Vidi, Vici' Born in June, 1707, and buried in July, 1708, just twelve months old, was another George, whose motto is 'Bulla est vita humana' Mr. Harry Cole's eldest son Edward appears to have succeeded his father, but though married, not to have had any family. are registered here, although he and his wife were buried here according to the following inscriptions on their gravestones in the chancel:—‘Here lieth the body of Edward Cole of Buckish in the County of Devon, Esquire, who departed this life the 17th of December, 1756, aged 67. And also the body of Sophia Cole, Widow and Relict of the said Edward Cole, who departed this life the 18th Nov: 1757, aged 47. She was the daughter of Hugh Parker, Esquire, eldest son of Sir Henry Parker, of Honington, in the county of Warwick, Baronet, and sister to the present Sir Henry John Parker, Baronet.’

Johanna Cole, who was born in 1704, married into the family of the Loggins of Warwickshire, and her son the Rev. William Loggin of Long Marston, Gloucestershire, succeeded on the death of the Rev. Potter Cole to the estates of the Cole family in Devonshire, etc., and by virtue of an Act of Parliament, which received the royal assent on 26 June, 1802, was “enabled to take the name and to bear the arms of Cole, pursuant to the will of his late Uncle Edward Cole, Esquire.” Mr. Loggin-Cole left a son, the Rev. William Loggin, who is described as

Potter Cole, M.A., entered into holy orders, and was sometime Rector of Alderley, Gloucestershire, where his wife Frances, daughter of Mrs. Frances Paske, died at the age of 24, on the 21st of May, 1733. He was also Vicar of Hawkesbury, in the same county, for the period of 73 years; and, says a writer in the Gentleman's Magazine “passed his long life in the constant and uniform practice of every christian duty. He was never absent from his parish for the space of one month at any time, and never advanced the rent of the tythes of anyone of his parishioners during his long incumbency. He was a friend to several public charities, and his private donations were a perpetual source of comfort to the widow and the fatherless. The poor of his own and the neighbouring parishes were almost daily partakers of his bounty; particularly during the late years of scarcity; and have great cause deeply to deplore the loss of their benefactor." He was married four times, but left no surviving issue. According to a monument in the church at Hawkesbury, he had by his wife Sarah (Arnold) a son, Harry, who died 12 June, 1756, aged 15 years, Elizabeth, who died 16 March, 1762, aged 23 years, and Frances, who died 15 May 1768, aged 16 years. He died 24 March, 1802, having nearly attained the great age of 97 years, "as (continues Mr. Jordan) I have learned from a friend who knew and visited him only two years before his death; when although debilitated from age and some natural afflictions, he retained much of the vigour of mind and politeness of manner by which he had been distinguished." The Rev. Edward Marshall, of Sandford Manor House, Oxon, possesses a sketch of him, which was considered a very faithful portrait; and which, though made in his 95th year, represents him as a man of much intelligence and power.

- 9 WILLIAM COLE (before-mentioned on p. 12) younger son of John, and grandson of Sir John Cole, knt., married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Richard Weston of Wiltshire, knt., and by her had a son and heir,
- 10 JOHN COLE, who married Mary, daughter and heiress to Thomas Archdeacon,* alias Ercedekne of Devon, gent., and had issue,

* The name of this ancient and noble family, which gave five knights of the shire to Cornwall, has been in different ages spelt in various ways; but l'Arcedekne, and Erchdeken seem to have been the most usual. The family was originally of Devon, but afterwards became by inheritance possessed of "two noble seats in Cornwall; of which the castle of Ruan-Lanihorne, then called Shepestall, was perhaps the most superb." In later times, however, the manor of East Anthony, which was obtained by marriage with the heiress of D'Auney, became the chief residence of this house.

In the reign of Henry III. Sir Michael Erchdekne owned the manor of Showbrooke in Devon, which, it is supposed, was acquired through a marriage with the heiress of the Clavells, who had been lords thereof from the time of the Norman Conqueror.

- 11 THOMAS COLE of London, who died April, 1571. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Hargrave of London, and had issue, four sons, and a daughter, Martha, who was married to John Warsop, of Clapham in Surrey, gentleman, and by him had a

His son and heir Sir Thomas Ercedekne, knt., sheriff of Cornwall, 7 Edward I., was father of Odo or Eudo le Ercedekne, who, in 1289, gave the lands of Westlydeton, to the abbey of Tavistock, and, in 1312, held the lordship and castle of Trematon. Odo was living in 18 Edward I., as was also his son and heir, Thomas, who afterwards received the honour of knighthood, and was made governor of Tintagel Castle. He served frequently as knight of the shire, was summoned to parliament as a Baron, from 15 May, 14 Edward II. (1321) to 13 September, 18 Edward II., and died at a patriarchal age in 1329. He married, first, Alice, daughter and eventual co-heir to Sir Thomas, Lord de la Roche; and his second wife was Maud, daughter of the Lord Mulys (or Moels). By the latter he had no issue, but by the former he had a son and heir, Sir John Archedeckne (aged about 25 years at his father's decease), who was knight of the shire in 10 Edward III., and much engaged in that monarch's wars with France and Scotland. He had summons to parliament as a Baron in 16 Edward III. (1342), and married Cecily, daughter and heiress to Sir Jordan de Haccombe (by his wife Isabel, daughter and heiress of Sir Mauger St. Aubyn, knt., of Pidekeswell in Georgeham, co. Devon), and by her had nine sons. Ralph, the eldest, died, s. p.; Sir Warren A., knt., the second son, succeeded to Lanherne, &c., married Elizabeth, daughter and co-heir of Sir John Talbot of Richards Castle, co. Hereford, and had a daughter, Philippa, who married Sir Hugh Courtenay of Boconnoc, brother to Edward, Earl of Devon, and second son of Hugh, the tenth Earl; Odo, the third son (Esch. 9 Henry IV., no. 39) was father of John l'Erchdekne, who, by Maud his wife, had a son and heir John, the father of Philippa and of another John (Esch. 13 Edward IV.), who had two sons, viz., John, the father of Joan, his heir, who was married to ——— Winter, of Cornwall (Esch. 1 Henry VIII), and Thomas, whose daughter Mary married John Cole, as in the text. The other six sons were Richard, who married Joane, daughter of Richard Bosowr, and had Thomas, in whom the heir male of this family took an end; John; Robert; Martyn; Reignald; and Michael.

In Gilbert's Cornwall, it is conjectured that some persons in humble circumstances, who bore the same name, and resided in the parish of East Anthony, were descendants of this ancient stock. A branch of it was once settled in Ireland; and built the picturesque castle of Monkstown, on the cove of Cork, and also that of Burnakelly. Mr. D'Alton in his Illustrations of King James' Irish Army List (1689), vol. I., gives sundry particulars relating to its various members, their possessions, &c., as do also Mrs. S. C. Hall, and Lady Chatterton, in their respective Tours in Ireland, and Gibson's History of the County of Cork. Mr. Andrew Arcedekne of Glevering Hall, Suffolk, is presumed to be also descended from this ancient stock.

Although the family of De la Roche (above named) was of the first distinction and son John Warsop, of Windsor, esq., and two daughters, viz., Rose W., married to George Smith of Mitcham, in Surrey, gent., by whom she had William, and several daughters; and Elizabeth W. (died in 1623), married to Sir Thomas Watson, of Halstead in power in Pembrokeshire, but few scanty notices of it exist. A branch of it, which has been ennobled under the titles of Fermoy, &c., settled in Ireland in very remote times, and had grants of large tracts of land in that kingdom, among which was one in the county of Cork, known to this day as "Roche's Country."

Another of its early members had the Province of Rhôs or Roos, in South Wales, committed to his charge by King Henry II., and was styled "Comes Littoris," an office that was hereditary and the extent of its jurisdiction was marked by the castles of Benton and Roch. The latter is said to have been built by Adam de Rupe, who founded the church of St. Mary Roch, and the priory of Hubberston-Pill, about the latter part of the twelfth century. He married Amy, the fair daughter of Fleming, a Norman knight; and it appears from the statutes of St. David's and the Charter of Pill, that he had a son Adam, and also one named David, whose son John was father of Thomas. He was, doubtless, the Sir Thomas de Rupe, above mentioned, who was summoned as a BARON, to the parliament held at London, 28 Edward I., and at Carlisle, 34th of the same king; and who also signed the celebrated letter to Pope Boniface VIII., in 29 Edward I. He held his barony as of the barony of Haverford.

Authorities state that his daughters Margaret (wife to Francis Fleming), Joan (wife to Sir David de la Roche), Alice (wife to Sir Thomas, Lord Arcedekne), Phillis (wife to Sir Kuwras Karn), and Louisa (wife to William de Valence) became eventually co-heirs; but in Dugdale's Warwickshire there is a pedigree shewing that he also left a son, Sir William de la Roche, who was the father of Sir Robert de la Roche, knt., who had John, married to Isabella, daughter and heiress to Henry de Bromwich, by whom he was father of Thomas, ob. infra ætatem, 9 Richard II., whose daughters and co-heirs were married to Edmund, fifth Lord Ferrers of Chartley, and to George Longvile. However, as Meyrick's Visitation of Wales by Lewis Dwnn vol. I.) only assigns to William a daughter and heiress, Mariota; whose daughter and heiress, Margaret, was wife to Sir Roger Clarendon, the natural son of Edward, "The Black Prince;" and as this is incontestably proved by a "Roll of Serjeanty" of Michaelmas Term 12 Richard II., it is evident that the Sir Robert named by Dugdale could not have been a legitimate son of Sir William.

Some of the same name owned large possessions in Cornwall, and Somerset in the 13th century. According to the Testa de Nevill, Gilbert de la Roche held half a knight's fee at Cottetford and la Schute, in the county of Southampton, and in 9 Edward I., Gilbert de R., was of Bromham in Wilts. His descendant John de Roche, chevalier, died, 50 Edward III., seised of several manors within the lordship of Haverford, and also of the family property in Wilts. The latter passed to his direct lineal descendant and representative, the late R. Nicholas, of Ryndnay and Aston-Keynes, formerly President of the Board of Excise, whose son and heir is

Kent, knt., by whom she had a daughter and heiress, Elizabeth, married, first, to Sir William Pope, son and heir to Sir William Pope, baronet, Earl of Downe, and Baron of Belturbet, in Ireland, (dignities now extinct) by his wife Anne, daughter of Sir Owen Hopton, knt., lieut. of the Tower of London, and relict of Henry, Lord Wentworth of Yorkshire. He (i.e. Pope) died, vidē patris, in 1624, leaving issue, Thomas,* John, William, Anne, and Major Griffin Nicholas, of the Hon. Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms, and late of the fifth Fusiliers.

Mr. Nicholas Adamson Roche of Paskeston, J.P., and D.L., for the county of Pembroke, and William Francis Roche, R.N., son of the late George Roche of Butterhill, J.P. and D.L. for the same county, are traditionally said to be descended from Adam de Rupe.

* This Thomas, born in 1622, succeeded at his grandfather's decease in July 1631, as second Earl of Downe, &c.; took an active part on the royalist side during the civil war, and died at Oxford, 28 December, 1660. By his wife Lucy, daughter of John Dutton, of Sherborne, he left an only daughter and heiress, the Lady Elizabeth Pope, married, first, to Sir Francis Henry Lee, bart., of Quarendon, Berks, and Ditchley, Oxon, by whom she had Sir Edward Henry Lee, fifth baronet, who was raised to the peerage, in 1674, as Baron of Spellesbury, Viscount Quarendon, and Earl of Lichfield. He married Lady Charlotte Fitzroy, and had six sons and three daughters. His lordship, who refused to swear allegiance to the new government at the Revolution, died 14 July, 1716, and was succeeded by his eldest surviving son, Sir George Henry Lee, sixth baronet, and second Earl, who married Frances, daughter of Sir John Hales, of St. Stephens, Tunstall, and Woodchurch, in Kent, and had issue: 1, George Henry, who succeeded as third Earl, &c., but died, s. p. in 1775, when the honours passed to his uncle, the Hon. Lady Lichfield afterwards became the third wife of Robert Bertie, third Earl of Lindsay, by whom she had one son, Charles, and a daughter, Elizabeth, who both died unmarried.

- 13 SIR WILLIAM COLE, only son of Emanuel, early in the reign of James I. fixed his residence in the county of Fermanagh: 10 September, 1607, he was made Captain of the long boats and barges at Ballyshannon and Lough Earne by patent, pursuant to privy signet 15 May preceding, with the fee of 3s. 4d. a day for himself, and 8d. a piece for 10 men. And becoming an undertaker in the Northern Plantation, he had an assignment 16 November, 1611, of the small proportion of Dromskeagh, containing 1000 acres of the escheated lands in the county of Fermanagh, at the crown rent of £8. English; to which 28 May, 1612, were added 320 escheated acres in the said county, at the rent of 20s., Irish; 80 acres whereof were assigned for the town of Enniskillen, and for the burgesses close and common for the said town, with an exception of the castle, and the other two-third parts of the island of Enniskillen, together with covenants for planting, building and inhabiting the said town, according to a plan set down by the Lord Deputy for Sir Ralph Bingley and Captain Basil Brooke, with a grant of a market and a fair, the clerkship of the market, and keeping of a toll booth within the said town, and a prohibition that none should sell by retail within three miles of the town, but such as Captain Cole should plant there or be resident; for performance of which covenants he entered into bonds with the Crown, and, having fulfilled his engagements, the town of Enniskillen was incorporated by a charter, consisting of a provost, and twelve burgesses, he himself being the first provost.* In 1614 he was Provost Marshal

* By patent, dated 21 September, 1623, pursuant to Privy Seals, dated at Westminster, 29 October, 1620, and 18 July 1622, and by the consent of Sir Thomas Dutton, one of the gentlemen of the King's Privy chamber, he received, a grant to him, his heirs and assigns, of the aforesaid excepted castle, fort and bawne of Enniskillen, and two third parts of the Island of Enniskillen, together with two small islands called Enniskillen Islands, all lying within Lough Earne, at the yearly rent of 5s. (Irish). And in virtue of the Commission, dated 13 August, 1628, for granting anew of all lately escheated lands in the province of Ulster, also in recompense of his good services, and for the fine of £32 12s. (English), King Charles, 6 May, 1629, confirmed to him and his heirs the whole small proportion of Dromskeagh, with all the hereditaments thereof, containing 1,000 acres by survey, in the baronies of Magheriboy and Clenawly, in the county of Fermanagh, with free liberty of fishing in Lough Earne, and 120 acres of concealed lands in the former barony, to hold by fealty only, and the yearly rent of £10 13s. 4d. (English) for Dromskeagh, and £1 6s. 8d. for the other; the whole being created into the manor of Portdorie for Ballyshannon;* in 1617 he was knighted by the Lord Deputy St. John, and 15 June, 1618, received the grant of a pension of 6s., English, by the day, on the surrender thereof by Captain Roger Atkinson; and 3 December following, he and his lady had a license to sell and retail wine, and to make and sell Aqua-vitæ, in Enniskillen.

In the Parliament of 1639 he represented the county of Fermanagh, and being a person of great prudence and conduct, enjoyed a considerable share of esteem from his country in general, and the government in particular; to whom he gave the first notice of what passed in the county among the abettors of the rebellion of 1641: "For Bryan Macguire (whom he afterwards preserved from the rage of the rebels, who were incensed against him for not taking the oath of confederacy with them) about 10 October, understanding by Farrell oge Mac Award, a friar, that there was a general purpose and resolution among the popish inhabitants of Ireland, to take up arms within a fortnight; and then to seize on all the strongholds, which they purposed to retain until they should procure liberty of conscience, and free exercise of the Romish religion; he gave then the more credit to that report, in regard that he had observed the unusual and frequent meetings between the Lord Maguire, Sir Phelim Roe O'Neil, Tirlagh oge Mac Hugh oge O'Hosie, and others of the chief of their country, and their followers; and imparted this discovery to Sir William Cole, who, the very next day (11 October) sent a letter to the Lords Justices by an express from Enniskillen, acquainting them with 'the unusual resort of people to Sir Phelim O'Neil's house; the frequent private journeys of Lord Maguire thither, to (English) and the rent of £53 16s. 8d. (English) of all his estate in the county of Fermanagh, with the creation thereof into the manors of Cormegradie and Portdorie, a demesne of 400 acres in each, liberty to impark 600 acres more, and usual privileges.—(LODGE).

* Moryson's Travailes, fo. ed. 1617, pp. 300-301.

Dublin, and other places, his many dispatches in great hurry to divers persons to meet at his seat, pretending to raise men for the king of Spain's service; to nominate captains under him to do the like, and pitching upon such as were men of broken fortunes, and the likeliest to be concerned in any mischief that was intended, of which the suspicions were very strong, and gave uneasiness to men of honest inclinations.'"

Upon the receipt of this intelligence the Lords Justices and Council wrote to Sir William requesting him to be very diligent and industrious to find out what should be the occasion of those meetings, and specially to advertise them thereof, or of any other particular, that he conceived might tend to the public service of the State which was all that could reasonably have been done by the State in those circumstances, Sir William's observations being only conjectural. But, being on his guard, and making daily remarks on what occurred in his part of the country, he received a more particular information, by John Cormack and Flaherty Mac Hugh, from Brian Mac Cohonaught Maguire, of the intended insurrection and seizing of the castle of Dublin; the murdering the Lords Justices, and the protestants of Ireland; and the seizing all the forts in the kingdom. With this news he dispatched on the 21st another express to the Lords Justices, which (whether the letters were intercepted, or otherwise miscarried) came not to their hands; but the intelligence next day, late in the evening, was confirmed by Owen O'Conolly, servant to Sir John Clotworthy, who communicated the conspiracy to the Lord Justice Parsons, out of a sense of his duty and loyalty to the king, and an effect of that (PROTESTANT) religion he was trained up in. Of which his relation Sir John Temple, Dr. Borlace, and other writers give account.

On the breaking out of the rebellion, Sir William Cole, received a commission under the Privy Signet, dated by the King at Edinburgh, 16 November, to be Colonel of 500 foot for suppressing the Rebels; upon which he soon raised most of the forces of Fermanagh; was Governor of the Garrison of Enniskillen, and by his prudent care preserved the country, in a great measure, from the desolation which threatened it. He did not confine his services to that part of the country only, but rendered himself remarkable to the parliament

(who had undertaken to prosecute the war) by his success in other parts of the kingdom. And in January, 1643, when his regiment was in the utmost necessity for bread, and totally destitute of their pay, Sir William, in his great zeal for His Majesty's service, and preservation of the regiment, bought from Robert Thornton, esquire, 200 barrels of rye, at the rate of 30s. the barrel, for their maintenance; but, notwithstanding his heavy private disbursements in this and other matters for the service of the State, he had long to await the repayment of his advances, as may be seen by referring to the Journals of the Houses of Lords and Commons.

Although Sir William was at this time advanced in years, he nevertheless (as has been stated) materially aided in the suppression of the rebellion; yet the signal services that he then, and on other occasions, rendered to his sovereign and his fellow citizens did not secure him from many representations by and much detraction from one less successful than himself, to whom he was the object of envy; but the pamphlet,* which he published in refutation of those spiteful attacks, shows that he was as well able to use his pen as his sword. It is quaintly remarked in Moryson's Hist. of Ireland (8vo, Dublin, 1735) that "This Sir William Cole, is a Justice of the Peace and Quorum in the county of Fermanagh, and hath been thrice Sheriff of his county."†. He married, first, Susanna, daughter and heiress to John Croft, of the county of Lancaster, esq., and relict of Stephen Segar, esq., Lieutenant of the Castle of Dublin, and had issue: Mary, married to the Reverend Master John Berkeley (or Berkeley); and Margaret, married to Sir James Montgomery,‡

† Sir William, for his services in Ireland, had a grant to his paternal coat armour of this augmentation:—"In dexter canton, per pale Gu. and Az., a harp of Ireland, Or, stringed Arg.;" and to the crest,— "a shield Or, in the sinister paw."

He married, secondly, Catherine, eldest daughter of Sir Lawrence Parsons, of Birr, in King's County, second Baron of the Exchequer (ancestor of the Earl of Rosse) and dying in October, 1653, was buried in St. Michan's Church, and left two sons, viz.:—

 II. Sir John Cole, bart., father of Sir Arthur, created Lord Ranelagh; which Sir John was seated at Newland, in the county of Dublin. "During the rebellion he was very active under his father, particularly in the relief of Enniskillen; which having been besieged nine weeks by 1,500 men under Philip Mac Hugh O'Reily, they were surprised in a sally by Walter Johnson, an officer under Sir William, who, being seconded by Sir John with his foot company and some volunteers, the siege was raised, and Sir John had the pursuit of the enemy for seven miles, as far as Maguire's bridge."

After the reduction of the kingdom by the parliament, he was appointed with others, 21 November, 1653, commissioners for the precinct of Belturbet, to consider how the titles of the Irish and others to an estate in Ireland, and also their delinquency according to their respective qualifications might be put into the most speedy and exact way of adjudication, so as might be with justice, and least prejudice to the public interest. On 27 September, following, he had the pay of £18 4s. by the month, allowed him as Governor of Enniskillen, and being very instrumental in promoting the restoration of king Charles II., his majesty, by privy seal, dated at Whitehall, 4 August, and by patent dated 23 January, 1660, created him a Baronet, in consideration of his very many good services performed to his majesty; and in December following, ordered him a commission to be Colonel of a regiment of foot, being well versed in military affairs, to which he was appointed 22 March following; having on the 19th been constituted one of the commissioners for the settlement of the

He married Elizabeth, daughter of John Chichester of Dunganon, esq., second brother to Arthur, created Earl of Donegall, and dying in or about the year 1691† had issue, four sons and seven daughters, viz.:—1, Sir Arthur, the second baronet, created Lord Ranelagh; 2, Michael, of Derry-castle, and Castle Lough, in the county of Tipperary, who, in September 1701, married Catherine, daughter of John Cusack, of Kilkisheen, in the county of Clare, esq., (who died 20 November, 1717) and by her, who died in 1718, had an only son, John, born 1703, who died a bachelor, in March 1724, and he himself, departed this life in 1726; 3, Colonel Richard Cole, of Archer's Grove, in the county

* On 2 April, 1658 (being then denominated of Newland) he purchased from Penelope, widow of Colonel Robert Baily, and Dr. William Baily (Henry Baily being dead) for the sum of £400, the lands of Moyntagh, containing 300 acres; Clontemneyland, 60 acres; Drumduffe, and others; in all 951 acres in the barony of Clenawly, which had been set out to the said Penelope towards satisfaction of her husband's arrears of £580 15s. 9d., for service in England and Ireland, the same having been devised to her, Dr. William Baily, and Henry Baily, by her husband's will, dated 19 February, 1650, viz.:—the lands of Moyntagh, 2 great tates, containing 300 acres of profitable land; Clontemneyland, half a tate, 60 acres; Drumduffe, Kiltewlean, and Garealy, alias Garowlas, half a tate, 50 acres; in Gartnasillagh and Mullownyskeogagh, 13 acres; Fineland and Conlerady, 1 tate, 80 acres; in Drumshrule and Claghanagh, the third of a tate called Cloghanagh, 23 acres; $\frac{5}{8}$ th parts of the great tate of Taytynamona, 83 acres; Cargillananagh, half a tate, 50 acres; Tullyhona, and Derrylaghta, 1 tate, 90 acres; Gortin, alias Molloghgarowe, and Trian, 1 tate, 80 acres; Drumevne and Tirkeene, 1 tate, 110 acres; and in the great tate of Corderragh and Heggnehorne, 12 acres.

Also 1 December, 1677, he had a release of the new quit-rents, imposed on his estate by the acts of settlement, and the King being fully satisfied of his faithfulness in his service, directed a patent to be passed to him of several tenements and parcels of ground in and about the town of Navan, with sundry others in the co. of Meath, which had been taken by lease, dated 9 March, 1634; demised by King Charles I. to William Billingsley of Dublin, esq., for 31 years, which was then for some years expired, and granted to Sir John for a like term, at such rent as the Barons of the Exchequer should think fit to reserve to the King.—LODGE.

18 WILLIAM WILLOUGHBY COLE, second Baron Mount-Florence, was born in 1736, and 6 May 1756, set out from Ireland for Gottingen in the Electorate of Hanover; he arrived there in June, and 10 August following pursued his travels, visiting the courts of Berlin, Brunswick, Dresden, Munich, Venice, Rome, Naples, Florence, Sicily, Pisa, Leghorn, Genoa, Turin, and most of the towns in Flanders, till 11 September 1757, when he arrived in London. In 1761 he was chosen to parliament for Enniskillen, for which borough he served till 1767; and 7 March, 1768, had his introduction to the house of peers on the death of his father. On 20 July 1776 he was created Viscount Enniskillen, pursuant to privy seal dated at St. James' 24 June preceding, and by that title took his seat in parliament 14 October, 1777: in 1789, he was further advanced to the dignity of Earl of Enniskillen; and died 22 May, 1803. His wife (to whom he was wedded 3 November, 1763) was Anne, daughter of Galbraith Lowry-Corry, esq., of Ahenis, in the county of Tyrone (whose son Armar was created Earl of Belmore) and by her ladyship, who died in 1802, had issue,

- 19 I. JOHN WILLOUGHBY COLE, second Earl of Enniskillen, K.P., Lord-Lieut. and Custos Rotulorum of the county of Fermanagh, born 23 March 1768; on 11 August, 1815, he was created, by patent, a peer of Great Britain, by the style of Baron Grinstead, of Grinstead, in the county of Wilts; he died 31 March, 1840, having married, 15 October, 1805, the Lady Charlotte Paget, fourth daughter of Henry, Earl of Uxbridge (by Jane, his wife, daughter of the very Rev. Arthur Champagné, A.M., Dean of Clonmacnoise*), and by her, who died 26 January 1817, he had,

* The Champagnés whose name is properly de Robillard are a very ancient family, and may be traced in French history to a period as remote as the eleventh century. Jean de Robillard, "homme d'armes de la compagnie de Jacques de Luxembourg, chevalier de la Toison de'Or," was living circa 1450. His son Jean de Robillard, "Ecuyer, noble homme," married Julienne de l'Orme, and dying in 1528 left a son, André de Robillard, Sieur de la Grange, et de la Champagné, 1557—1572. He married Judith Boursicot, and left issue: 1. Jean, Seigneur de la Grange 2. Daniel, Seigneur de la Fontanelle, married, 1625, Judith, daughter of Isaac Poytvain, Ecuyer, Seigneur de Portal, and had issue; 3. Josias, Seigneur de Champagné; and Susanne-Anne-Elizabeth, married to Pierre Tallyrand de Grignange. The third son, Josias de Robillard, married in 1639, Marie, daughter of Nathaniel de Maziere, Sieur des Seignories de Voutron et de la Canne, and was father of Josias de Robillard, Chevalier, Seigneur de Champagné, who married Marie, daughter of Casimir de la

- V. The Lady Jane Anne Louisa Florence Cole, born 27 June, 1811, died unmarried, 23 March, 1831.
- 19 II. The Honourable Sir GALBRAITH LOWRY COLE (second son of the first Earl) was born 1 May, 1772, entered the army as cornet in the 12th regiment of Dragoons, and subsequently attained the rank of Lieut.-general, and G.C.B.; he was Colonel of the 27th or Inniskilling regiment of Foot, commanded the 4th division of the British army throughout the Peninsular war; and thrice received the thanks of the Houses of Parliament for Rochefoucauld, "haut et puissant Seigneur des Fouches," and left issue, 1. Josias, who adopted the surname of De Champagné; 2. Augustus, a colonel in the Army; and several daughters, one of whom, Susanne, married the Baron Tonnay-Vonton et de St. Surin, and was mother of Henri Auguste, Baron de la Motte-Fouqué, the celebrated Prussian General under Frederick the Great, and grandfather of the Baron de la Motte-Fouqué, the distinguished writer.

The elder son, Josias de Robillard, who took the surname of de Champagné, left Saintonge on the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, married Lady Jane Forbes, daughter of Arthur, second Earl of Granard, and dying at Portarlinton in 1737 left an only son, the very reverend Arthur Champagné, A.M., Dean of Dean of Clonmacnoise, born in 1714, who married Marianne, daughter of Colonel Isaac Hamon, whose ancestor came to England early in Queen Elizabeth's reign from Backqueville, in Normandy, and settled at Rye in Sussex. Dean Champagné died in 1800, leaving issue, inter alios, a daughter Jane, married in 1767 to Henry Paget Earl of Uxbridge, and mother of Charlotte, Countess of Enniskillen.—BURKE.

his distinguished services. The resolution of the House of Commons on 21 of May 1815 states that the thanks of that House were presented to him for his distinguished exertions at the battle of Salamanca, on 22 July 1812; for his great exertions on 21 June 1813, when the French army was completely defeated by the allied forces under the command of the Duke of Wellington, near Vittoria; for the valour, steadiness, and exertion so successfully displayed in repelling the repeated attacks of the whole French force under Marshal Soult, between 25 July and 1 August, 1813; and lastly, for his able and distinguished conduct throughout those operations which concluded with the entire defeat of the army at Orthes 27 February, 1814, and the occupation of Bordeaux by the allied forces; he also acquitted himself so gallantly at Maida, as to call forth the expression of gratitude from the representatives of the country. He was wounded at Albuera,* and in subsequent engagements. In 1814 he received the honour of knighthood, and was also decorated with the insignia of the Portuguese Order of the Tower and Sword, and of the Turkish Order of the Crescent, etc.. He was M.P. for the county Fermanagh, in the Irish House of Commons from 1798 to 1803, and in the Imperial Parliament from 1803 to 1823; and was Governor of Gravesend, and Tilbury Fort, and of the colonies of the Mauritius and the Cape of Good Hope, in which last he gave his name to the town of Colesburg. A handsome column has been erected in his honour at Enniskillen by the tenantry of the Enniskillen estates, on which are enumerated the various expeditions that he took part in, including (besides those above referred to) Olivença, Martinique, Guadaloupe, Egypt, Pyrenees, Nivelle, and Toulouse. Copious accounts of the career of this gallant general appeared in the publications of the period, and eulogistic notices of him are to be found in the "Biographical Dictionaries" of Chalmers, Rose, and others; and an excellent memoir of him in the "Peninsular Generals."† A fine monument in the church of Enniskillen bears a nearly full sized and beautifully
